DEDICATION

The carefree days of childhood are almost past, leaving us only many coveted memories. Every tree and flower, every building and familiar landmark with which we were happily associated during those developing years, will always be a treasured part of each poignant recollection. And so we, who have been graduated this year, dedicate our book to our beloved town and high school.

FOREWORD

When in future years we long for the comforting protection and the happy days of high school, let us open to this page and travel backward into time. Let it be a handmaiden to memory, a magic carpet to carry us back to Mount Vernon and our youth. Perhaps we may even recapture for a moment those pleasant days, and then we shall have succeeded in our purpose; for, though a happy day passes, we may treasure its memory like a precious jewel; and for all that our school and town have done for us, we shall be eternally grateful. May the next pages, in a humble way, show our gratitude to Davis and Mount Vernon.

"Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight,
Make me a child again just for tonight!"

POSTER

MISS RHODES

We are all familiar with the way an able sculptor takes raw material and chisels lifelike characters, and how an artist creates various objects with his brush or crayon. Few of us realize, however, that in a similar manner, the head of our Board of Education aids in the molding of our characters during our formative school years.

By training and experience, Miss Rhodes has been a capable and well qualified leader. Through her careful preparations and purposeful endeavors, we students have been well informed and instructed. She has led in the improvement of teaching methods by combining the best from leading educational centers.

Miss Rhodes has proved herself to be most capable and zealous in helping us improve during our school years. We can show our gratitude to this progressive leader by becoming what she has prepared us for — the better citizens of the future Mount Vernon.

Mr. Cullen

ORCHIDS TO CHIEF DAVISITES

To Mr. Cullen! For his untiring efforts in improving our school building (the newly painted rooms and auditoriums certainly make everything cheerful!); for his advocation of football rallies and his infectious enthusiasm (remember that ride over to Roosevelt High School in those buses Mr. Cullen reserved for us?); for his reorganization of the Marshal Force; for the sound-proofing of the lunch rooms.

But probably most important of all, we are indebted to Mr. Cullen for his continually helping students maintain, and if possible surpass, the records of accomplishments and success of previous years.

Spot that line! It leads to Mr. Childs, Vice-Principal, Counselor, and Life-Molder.

Advice! Yes, that's Miss Lewis, that Human Dynamo of vim, vigor, and vitality.

Programs! See Mr. Addis, super-duper salesman of the right subject for you.

"Is 'ignominiousness' spelled with an 'ious' or just 'us', and if so, why?" Questions of this nature were hurled at our valiant English teachers each day by knowledge-hungry (and occasionally "teacher-baiting") students. Our teachers stood up very well under the strain, as was evidenced by the flow of smoothly-speaking students who left the portals of Davis High.

The most heart-rending sound ever to echo through Davis' halls was that of an English teacher's groan as he or she heard a prize student calmly and maliciously split an infinitive or even worse — use a double subject! Our teachers patiently undid those speech defects to the best of their ability, and then hoped to have their efforts rewarded by an ever-slight refining of the general speech pattern around the school. (Youse peepul shud all apreciat there effurt—Ed.)

Miss Brower, our "Psycho-Englo" mastermind, was the guiding force behind the English Department. When she was not buried among the voluminous volumes contained in the book room, or telling young psychiatrists-to-be about the razor in "Spellbound", she was to be found in conference with "Coach" Doyle, or some other member of the English Department.

The English language is the backbone of our society and as such is the backbone of the school. We are indeed fortunate to have such an efficient and conscientious group of English instructors.

"Music is the soul of man," some wise sage once said. To be sure that no Davisite was lacking in soul-development, Mr. Nielsen and Mr. Licht, as always, prepared musical treats for Davisites to enjoy. Mr. Nielsen's chorus serenaded us during the Christmas assembly, and the band, under Mr. Licht's able direction, gave a concert that showed to the pleasure of all, its versatility and vigor of performance. Both these men will always deserve great praise for their continued efforts in making more and more of Davis music-conscious.

LANGUAGES

Wheeeeeeeeeeeet! Reet! That's Miss Wight and her hustle whistle blowing the variegated specie of feminine pulchritude into position—'tention! And with her is her partner in crime, Miss Taylor. Together, these sculptors practice the art of molding with human material, which at least is flexible. Heads up! Tummies in! Shoulders back! Hands at side! And there you are — perfect human statues waiting for the "at ease" signal! Keep up the good work, though, we'll learn to walk correctly, even if we are taking seventeen years at it.

Yes, "patience is a virtue," and without the undying efforts of our educators we would probably continue to crawl and babble. However, with their aid, we've advanced beyond the Stone Age, and some of us even attempt to nibble on a slice of another language. Deutsch, El Espanol, Le Francais and Latin are echoed throughout the halls with a strong American accent. But we'll get there, thanks to our poor sufferers who are obliged to listen to the wrong verb conjugations. To further us in our ambition to rub verbs with any foreigner, language clubs have been organized for each respective language. Here, the eager beavers parlez-vous francais, comprende el Espanol, verstehen Deutsch and gain helpful cultural information regarding these countries.

If one taxes his mental powers sufficiently, he might recall those pleasant years when he was required to calculate the sum of "two and two" or the more involved, "one times two." Gone are those days—now we move a point (nothingness in space) through the air and get a line! By now you must realize it is the Math Department that is under discussion. The fact that the whole staff, with the exception of the business math staff, is comprised of women must have some significant meaning — but we couldn't find any.

Miss Breining, Miss Watson, Miss Walther, Miss Brown, Miss Cleveland, Miss Okerstrom, Miss Padou

The grueling, repetitious work done by this staff is known to all, but how many also know of the other tasks they did as a result of their exacting minds? To answer this briefly —The Master Mastermind (Miss Brown) handled all bond orders and drives; Miss Padou, among others, handled all the stamp orders. Miss Walther collected bottles for Grasslands and also magazines for the armed forces.

The future artists from Davis were given very capable instruction by Mr. Dodds and Miss Nourse. Mr. Dodds, known to all of us for his Bible-quoting ability, is also well known in the art world. His paintings have been in many exhibitions in New York. Miss Nourse, in addition to her time-consuming job as the guiding spirit behind the Maroon and White, also has a job as an art teacher. She is certainly to be congratulated for the cooperation she could give the Annual, and yet still be able to give her classes the expert instruction of which she is capable.

In the middle of March many Davisites planned to visit their optometrists (Park Avenue eye doc) to have their winking apparatus given an overhauling. Despite the fact that they were not overworking in school (their teachers vouched for this), they claimed that they saw many students with spotted countenances! However, in a well-planned raid, our energetic heroine, Mrs. Morgan, the school nurse allayed their fears by saying that there were spots and that measles were in Davis. Mrs. Morgan handled the situation so well that the number of "untouchables" remained surprisingly low. Mrs. Morgan is called upon to perform all sorts of odd tasks each day and this illustration shows how capable and adaptable she is.

Clothing, food and shelter are the basic essentials of life. To show us how to obtain these essentials, is the job of Miss Redmond and Miss Sherman.

Their work is taken for granted — few realize that Miss Redmond arrives here in the early hours of the morning in order to prepare the day's food. The sturdy, healthy-looking students of Davis attest to the success of her preparations.

Miss Sherman molds the wives of tomorrow from the fair Davis maidens of today. She instructs the girls in dressmaking, cooking and other feminine tasks that will be expected of them in future years. The excellence of her instruction was shown by the fashion show she directed. This show, praised by all, demonstrated her ability to handle large quantities of clothing and girls (sixty of them) efficiently.

Our new addition to the physical ed. staff, Mr. Palombella, has proven his worth to all. He learned the ropes quickly — in fact he added a few of his own that had the classes sweating — and possibly swearing! He and Mr. Oswald certainly did their job of keeping Davis boys in good physical condition. The cross country, track, and swimming teams were also under their watchful eyes, in addition to baseball and basketball.

It is true that Grant captured Lee at Appomatox, that the Linnaeus system of naming plants, animals, and diseases is still in use, and that moist air is a poor conductor, but were it not for the efforts of our history and science teachers, we would remain ignorant of the two subjects that affect our lives so greatly. The world about us is deeply enveloped in situations that have been the result of these subjects. We are fortunate to have teachers who possess the patience, understanding, kindliness and firmness to guide us in comprehending them.

Our teachers consider their tasks as an opportunity to aid us in such a way that our future may be better for their expert aid. They prepare students to become valuable members of society. This is illustrated by Mrs. Addis' work in organizing the "Our Town Club," with the purpose of keeping us informed about city government. Mrs. Hiller's sponsorship of the History Club has proved invaluable to those interested in world affairs.

Our science teachers have been guiding factors in a difficult subject which is life itself. Yet, they have ushered us through many phases and have inspired some to pursue the study of science as life work.

At some time in our lives we students, either secretly or outwardly, sincerely thank our instructors for their work as educators and humanitarians. We would like to thank them now.

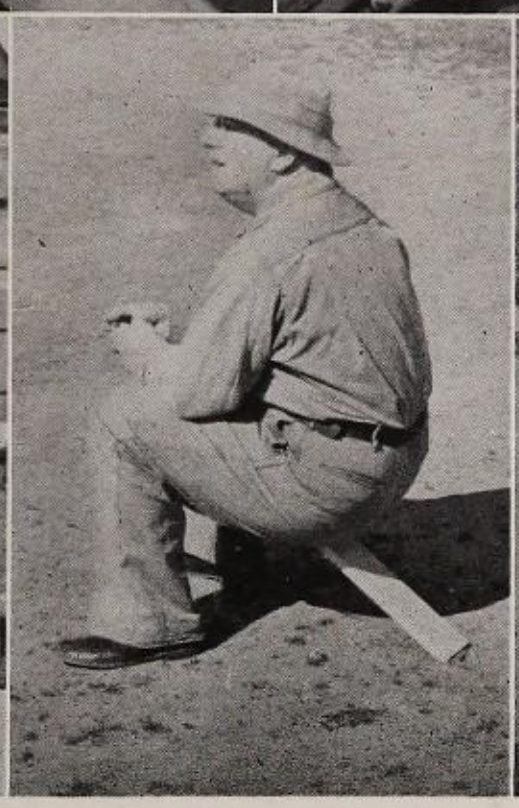
After sweating and straining over homework each evening and then having the information painfully (yet sympathetically) extracted by the teachers, it was easy to see why students were apt to forget that teachers were human.

Therefore, let us visit or observe some of the school staff in their "unnatural" habitat (called "unnatural" for the benefit of those students who never saw a teacher away from his or her desk. Even the rigors of school life and that long line each morning did not consume all of the vivacious Mrs. Morgan's energy; spring and fall she may be seen gaily cycling over the highways and byways! One would think that the constant parade of students and questions that Mr. Stokes faced each day would have exhausted him, but such was not the case. Every afternoon papa Stokes hurried home to his brood and went through another intensive "question and answer period."



Mr. Oswald faced boys from early in the morning until near sundown. In the early hours he gathered all strollers to school that he passed, and transported them royally to school. In the little time he had to himself, he traveled over the country from coast to coast and took beautiful color photographs of scenery in national forests which the school had the pleasure of seeing on several occasions. Mr. Caville and Mr. Searle also had the youth's welfare in mind (as had all the teachers). The former coached the Rifle Team in his free hours, while the latter devoted much of his time to the activities of the "Y". Mrs. Santen continued on her golfing ways and it was authoritatively reported that her mashie was a masher! With all the money the G. O. took in and sent out, Miss Creekpaum didn't have very much spare time. Besides, who ever said that collecting money was a bad hobby! Just to "clinch" the argument, notice Mr. Johnson, as thankfully as any of us, returning to his new home in Fleetwood. The pleasure he gets from seeing an occasional pheasant or wild rabbit, or the wild ducks on the Bronx River near his home is his tonic after a hard day's work. "Pop" Phillips, as umpire at the Student-Faculty game was right at home exercising those famous vocal cords without restraining walls. Messrs. Cullen, Addis and Nielsen are thrilling to a ball game along with the rest of us. We didn't suspect at the time, but realized later, that Mr. Cullen was there for the express purpose of stealing ideas to use at the Student-Faculty game. He tried to win by unique strategy and almost succeeded.

BUENOS DIAS, MONSIEUR

If you "parlez-vous francais" you could go into room 314 and join Le Cercle Francais. This group of French-speaking Davisites was banded together under the guidance of Mrs. Stiles. Their meetings consisted of short skits presented by the club members in French; French songs, and general conversation in French. Each get-together was planned by a program committee for the enjoyment of the group. This club was both beneficial and enjoyable to the members, for they got a chance to apply and improve what they learned in class.

El Ateneo was the Spanish club headed by Miss Leighton. The only requirement to join this club was to be able to speak Espanol. The club meetings consisted of Spanish conversation, Spanish skits, Spanish songs, and any of many other various activities that a language club includes. This club was always fun for the members and sponsor alike.

CHEM STUDES AND STAR GAZERS

Bang! Don't be alarmed, that's only some concoction by the Chem Studes. They exploded every first and third Thursday in 312, in that little room of stairs with desks attached. Under the supervision of "Charlie" Stokes and Mr. Bunker, and with the aid of a test tube and a Bunsen burner, the members delved into the mysteries of the elements, helping to satisfy the scientific curiosity of Davis' more ambitious chem students.

"Astronomy Clubbers" know old man moon better than most of us know our best friends. Moon-gazers, yes, but not for romantic reasons alone. There are a lot of things we don't know about our friendly neighbor of the sky.

TIME MARCHES ON

History Club

The History Club, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Elizabeth Hiller, had a very busy year. During the fall term, the group journeyed to New York City to see the Broadway hit "State of the Union" which dealt with the problems of politics. Under the leadership of Robert Leon, president during the fall term, and David Feigert, president during the spring, the club discussed current problems, such as "The Future of the Atomic Bomb". A trip to historic St. Paul's Church was proposed. This church was of special interest to the club, as it is the national shrine to Freedom of Speech because the trial of Peter Zenger, the proponent of the right to speak without fear of punishment, was held there.

The debaters of the club made extensive use of the Davis library. There were over 6,500 books plus many pieces of reference material available for the use of any and all Davisites. Under the able direction of Miss Proctor, the librarian, the students gained much knowledge through the use of this public service.

If you happened to be in Davis any ninth period of a second or fourth Thursday, and felt the walls of Davis High tremor and heard the rumble of Davis students on the run, you all knew that the "Our Town Club" was about to assemble! This club, the largest and most active at Davis, evolved from a primary membership of 50 students to a maximum of 250 "Our Towners". Its growth was so tremendous that it abandoned the small auditorium in favor of the large one, but what will happen when it outgrows that? Under the capable supervision of Mrs. Walter Addis, who organized the club in September, 1944, the club strived to acquaint its members with the Mount Vernon city government, its industries, cultural groups, and educational facilities.

Best wishes to a classmate and buddy in the Army

LEARNING CITY MANAGEMENT

The club officers were nominated and elected by the students themselves in a semi-annual direct primary election. After the students had voted for nomination in the primary election, the top ten were again voted upon to ascertain the three main officers of the club. This year's officers were Eugene Nadel, President; Barbara Bronson, Vice-President; and Marjorie Reichert, Secretary. Past chief executives were Loomis Dana, the first president, Raymond Myers, and Gray Robinson.

The club program, based upon suggestions made by the members, was both instructive and interesting. During past meetings, the club heard many of the City's prominent citizens speak on various subjects pertinent to Mount Vernon city life. One of the main features of the fall program was the "Pearl Harbor Day" visit to City Hall. Through the cooperation of the Mayor and his official family of City Officials, eight elected and thirty-two delegated representatives of the "Our Town Club" took over the reins of government in Mount Vernon for the day.

Gray Robinson, our "Mayor", spent a really rough day trying to keep up with the pace of His Honor Mayor William Hart Hussey. One very obvious consolation to Gray for his trials and tribulations as "Mayor", was his very charming secretary, Miss Barbara Bronson. And whoever will forget the "fire" during which "Fire Chief" Arnold Hoffman climbed up the walls of Davis High, while Davis students stood aghast at this strange and startling phenomenon! We shall never know who was more frightened, the "Fire Chief" or the "spectators".

The adventures of Mount Vernon's "officials" did not stop with a mere fire. Many of the students visited the police station, where they were shown everything from the radio room and finger-print department to the dark caverns of the photography room and the cells where they kept adult delinquents. At a meeting of the Board of Education, Eugene Nadel, student president of the Board, assisted Mr. Robert G. Sturtevant in conducting the monthly meeting of the Board. Through that visit and actually "sitting in" on the various functions of the city government, the students gained first hand information on the workings of the various branches of the municipal government.

At noon, the city officials and student representatives (84 in all), went to the Studio Club for luncheon. Mayor Hussey delivered a welcoming address to all on behalf of the other city officials and himself. At the end of the afternoon, when the immediate activities of the city came to a slow halt, the student officials bade a sad adieu to City Hall and its very genial administrators; and then made a mad dash for Teen Town (under the Recreation Commission, you know) where the evening's entertainment cleared the cobwebs from tired brains. This ended the activities of the fall term of Our Town Club.

The Spring Program got well under way with a Quiz Contest on Mount Vernon, under the Chairmanship of our Vice-Principal, Mr. Childs. Robert Zadek, apparently the best informed "Our Towner" on Mount Vernon affairs, came out the victor. Nevertheless, he was closely pursued by Arturo Gonzalez, Beatrice Kaplan, Ira Bernstein, Mary Ann Hargrave, Joan Habel, and Jerome

Kossar. You'd be surprised at the things they knew about Mount Vernon.

The Mount Vernon Movie Makers, who have consistently won awards for their excellence in photography, exhibited their prize winning trophies and prize winning movies to the "Our Towners". So you see, it was possible to learn and to enjoy oneself at the same time.

The City of Mount Vernon rendered a valuable service to Our Town Club by helping to start our members on the road to good citizenship, and by "turning out" boys and girls mentally aware as to what makes Mount Vernon "tick".

During the past year the Railroad Society had many an interesting experience. Under the leadership of Mr. Sundermann, faculty adviser, the club took several trips to the model railroad exhibit in Pelham and to the New York Central Railroad yards at Harmon. This club had one of the most interesting topics to consider; each of us was thrilled the first time we saw a snorting steam locomotive and wondered what made the wheels go 'round.

Another experience which had always mystified the majority of us, was the radio. Here at Davis we had a club which studied this interesting gadget. The fellows, under the watchful eye of Mr. Buckle during the fall term, and Mr. Rappaport in the spring, took apart and rebuilt radios and built others from scratch. The group also studied other aspects of radio and electronics with the hope of eventually becoming "hams" or (amateur radio operators).

CHESS TEAM

Everybody was puzzled by the queer names and movements of the chess men used to such good advantage by the team. For the third year in succession, the team has won the Westchester Interscholastic Trophy Cup. Of the ten games played with the county high schools, "Pop" Phillips' team won nine. They also played the Ward Leonard Electric Company, scoring 5-5, and planned to challenge a New York high school team. The following boys comprised the team: Captain, Arthur Klatsky; Richard Lynn, Daniel Samuels, Eugene Goldberg, Donald Stamm, and Harold Hussey.

SNAPS AND STAMPS

Almost all of us have, at one time or another, snapped a picture and sent the film away to be developed. The Davis shutterbugs formed the Camera Club, which this year, under the guidance of Mr. Buckle and later Mr. Rappaport, formed plans to take pictures of each Davisite. To achieve this, the darkroom was renovated, and received a new coat of paint. An exhibition of pictures taken by club members was held in the showcases around the halls. The president of the club, William Margerin, was Photo Editor of the Maroon and White. Several other members served on the staff of the yearbook.

The Davis Stamp Club was active this year collecting stamps for use in military hospitals. The philatelists did their work with Mr. Avery, adviser to the club. They discussed rare issues and traded stamps. Robert Schweitzer was president of the club and very ably conducted its meetings. Great interest was shown in the various issues which came from all countries during the war, especially those which were used during the occupations. The leaders of the Axis countries must have enjoyed seeing their faces on letters, as almost all of the stamps from these countries had as their centers of interest a replica of their country's leader. Theirs, most certainly, is an interesting and, at the same time, an educational hobby.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY

Of this we're certain — Davis had much talent in the field of dramatics this year. It was all gathered together and led ably by Miss Feaster, the head of the Dramatic Society. Not only did the members entertain themselves period 9s, but they also displayed their talent to others. "College Days" will long be remembered as one of the finest musicales ever produced. And who will forget the superb acting in "The Valiant"? There were others too, not forgotten, just too numerous to mention. Professionals would have had quite a hard time competing with our stars!

STAGE CREW

"For want of a nail the show was lost" would aptly describe the importance of the stage crew. These weight lifting, finger crushing, paint spattered lads were responsible for the fine scenery that was a part of all Davis shows.

Jack (the lad-of-all-trades) had nothing on the stage crew members. These boys had to be electricians, carpenters, painters, and sweepers, and when a chair or tree was needed during rehearsals, you very possibly might have found them giving of their dramatic ability in order to cover the need.

The Thespians were the students who had proven their worth in the field of acting, make-up application, or set construction. They were a hard-working group and they deserved all the praise they got from the school.

Five o'clock in the folds of Davis, and all the accumulated waste paper is stacked, and all the desks are dusted, and all the floors are swept, and all's quiet on the western front. Any little termite would call it a day, if he peeked out of the walls and into the halls of learning. Perhaps he'd be puzzled by the constant pecking of the woodpeckers in the eastern half of the building. (Oh, but probably they were hired to bore some knowledge into the blockheads attending Davis.)

On second thought our little termite would realize that the faithful members of the Maroon & White business staff were doing their part of the job in an effort to produce a yearbook we'd be proud of! They were taking care of the "unglorified" end — typing, counting money, balancing budgets, sending out notices, taking dictation, soliciting advertisements, and keeping a record of what's what for whom and why.

And who's the King Bee of this buzzing, busy beehive? Why, it's Mr. Sundermann who keeps this end athrive!

Tucked away in a small but important corner of Mount Vernon was a group of ambitious young people writing the Davis Year Book. Completely oblivious of their surroundings were co-editors Dorothy Calabrese and Robert Leon desperately working to fit Mount Vernon somehow into one book. With a Math Genius like Bob Leon anything can happen, even putting city hall on the cover.

Sitting nearby was energetic Susan Foster, Art Editor, sketching so many people they seemed to jump right from her pen to the paper. Doing the greater share of the art work, Sue had spent a fortune in time on it. Our nimble-footed photographers, under William Margerin's Editorship, had quite a time proving to Sue that much time and energy could be saved by using snaps (not ginger!).

Through Miss Nourse's careful guidance and assistance this book was made possible. She cheerfully and willingly gave up her spare time for working on the book.

Struggling through an unfathomable depth of papers was Lorraine Alper, the Literary Editor. After many hours of thrashing about, Lorraine finally bobbed her head to the surface, took in a deep gulp of air and swam for shore and rest — finished!

THE COOPERATIVE PLAN BRINGS TOP SUCCESS

How can we ever forget the familiar chant at the beginning of every term which would come from the Hi-News Reps: "Bring that money for the Hi-News!" Then, towards the end of this high powered subscription drive along would come "Uncle" Charlie Altschuler to all the home rooms, and he would literally drag the money out of those poor unfortunates who thought they would be able to get away without subscribing one term! That team of Hi-News Reps, combined with the ad-getters and Mr. Altschuler were always in there fighting to make sure that expenses would be met and that the Hi-News would be published. They comprised the hard-working Hi-News Business Board of Davis.

This board is a student project and Davisites are given many opportunities to be a part of it. They can fill any of the following jobs: business manager, advertising manager, circulation manager, exchange manager, student manager, and ad-getters. Mr. Altschuler has been the faculty adviser for more than ten years. He has acted as a guide and counselor to the student staff, and not as a "boss". He and the students would meet informally to work out their mutual problems.

Because of the splendid staff of students and Mr. Altschuler, who gave so unsparingly of their time and effort, the Hi-News has achieved great success in obtaining over 1400 subscriptions, and in having in some issues over 100 inches of advertising.

Those who would add their names to the illustrious staff were obliged to obtain at least three inches of advertising space from merchants for every issue of the newspaper. The ambitious staff could never sit back and "rest upon its laurels".

The merchants in town have always been glad to cooperate when one of the members of the persistent ad-getters group solicited them for advertisements. They know as well as we do, that the Hi-News is a terrific paper, worthy of all-out support.

Hi-News Editorial Board

This year's Hi-News lent a note of distinction to Davis. Under the faculty sponsorship of Mr. Copp, it lived up to its brilliant record of the past three years by winning top honors in the inter-scholastic press contests conducted by the National Scholastic and Columbia Scholastic Press Associations.

Undoubtedly the newspaper's high degree of success was due to the efficient management and the manner of choosing the members. Competitive tryouts were held each term, and the winning contestants were chosen members of the Editorial Board.

In the picture above, editor Ed Leaton, and Mr. Freybourg, our faithful printer, are reviewing a copy just off the press. Satisfaction is written all over their faces, just as satisfaction was shown by the Hill-toppers when they gave their stamp of approval by subscribing to an all-time high.

DAVIS DEBATERS AT WORK

DEBATING SOCIETY
RADIO DISCUSSION CLUB

If, in walking through the halls of Davis, you heard what might have led to a filibuster, you shouldn't have gone looking for Senator Claghorn, as most likely it would have been found that the cause of that commotion was either the Debating Society or the Discussion Club. Under the guidance of Mr. Johnson, the Debating Society has for many years been one of the best known activities in Davis. Students used their ample lung-power to attempt to present a winning case for a proposal or to attack this same thing.

Every year the society presented debates among the members and against teams from other schools. Annually the Evander Childs High School of New York City has given opposition to our Inter-scholastic Debating Squad, as did the freshman members of the Debating Society of New York University. A model debate was presented for the Saturday Night Club for which Garrett Sanderson, winner, received a cash award. The officers of the society were Eugene Nadel, president; David Feigert, vice-president; and Sidney Knafel, secretary.

The Discussion Club, with Mr. Carlson as its sponsor, chose Edwin Wittstein for president duirng the fall term and George Scoledes for the same office during the spring. The club served a great need for airing the members' views on current problems and world affairs.

RETAILERS CLUB

ARGUS PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

The Argus Publicity Committee, with David Feigert as president and Mrs. Santen adviser, wrote "Davis Dots and Dashes" this year. The members took turns writing about Davis doings and endeavored to get as many names as possible ("Look Mama, my name's in the paper!") mentioned in the column and still keep it interesting.

There is no sure "get rich quick" formula. However, the Retailers Club helps its members to at least get a head start in business. In the club they are given chances to put their knowledge of salesmanship and store management into practice.

Football Squad

Cheerleaders

A GOOD SPORT MADE TO ORDER

We now come to football, considered by many Davisites the most important sport at our school. During this last season, our team did very well. Winning our first four games, we almost won the county championship. Thousands of spectators at Howard Field testified to the enjoyment of this game by Mount Vernonites.

But our football team had to be helped out, and the cheerleaders accomplished this. It was our cheerleaders who put the spirit of the stands behind our men, and who pushed them on to victory. And while some of the cheers were difficult for the new sophomores to learn, we managed to drown out the voices of our opponents without too much straining.

The Davis Scoreboard Squad had the task of keeping the spectators informed of the actions of our fast-moving team. The fellows who did this job were kidded by half the school, but think of the bewilderment of some poor ignoramus trying to follow the game without the board! Our Scoreboard Squad did a fine job, despite the many jibes they had to endure.

The success of a team depends on the men who play on it. The football season has been over for many months now, but many probably still remember many of Davis's players. One of the most outstanding was Mauro Valentine, our fullback. Mauro and quarterback Sandy Sokoloff were the hub of many of our plays. They did most of the passing. Running plays are as important as passing plays; in this field we had Angie Carrideo and Herb Ramsey, while Mauro also made several end runs.

REMEMBER THE DAY?

. . . "Bruiser" Billipp held off the whole Pelham team? (or at least two of them!) Our line play was really spectacular this season. With Gilbert, Mellis, Graney, and all the other boys in there on every play, it is no wonder our team was one of the best in the county!

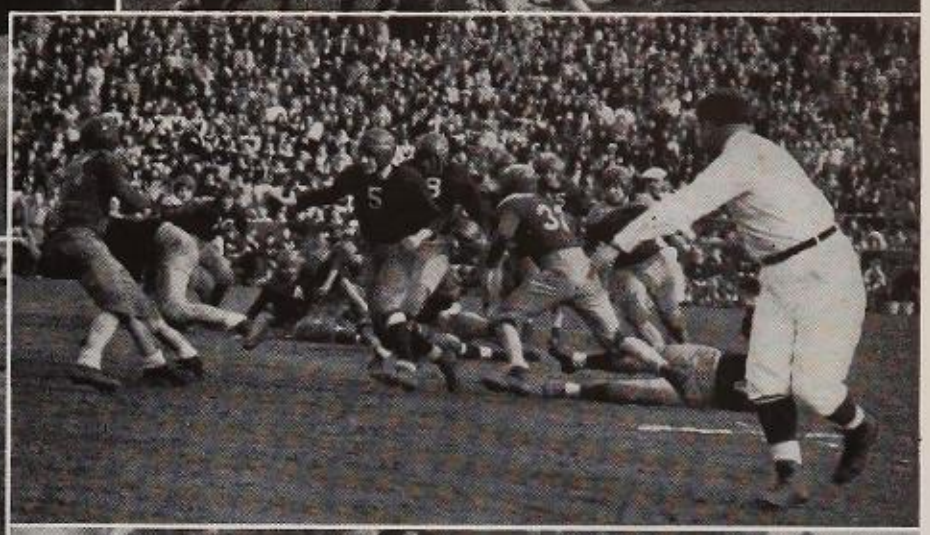
. . . "Caledonia" got out of hand and romped about the gridiron? This was the first season Davis had a mascot, and he was really appreciated by all. By the way — Caledonia! What makes your big ears so long?

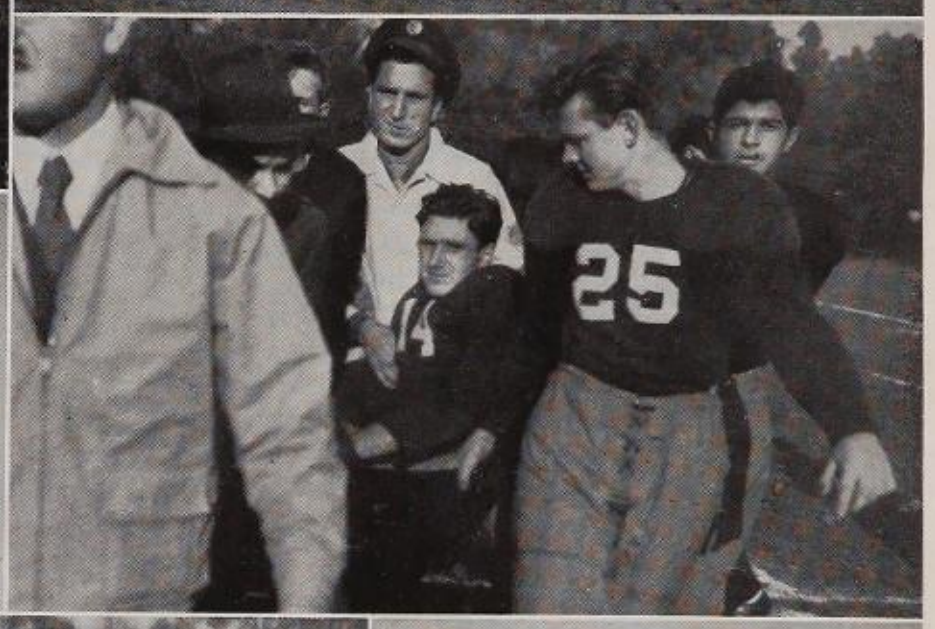
. . . Mauro Valentine was finally brought down after one of his usual long runs? (If you look closely, you can see Mauro's left leg sticking out of the pile.) As usual, Big Tom Kloberg (21) was right in on the play in case of any slip-ups.

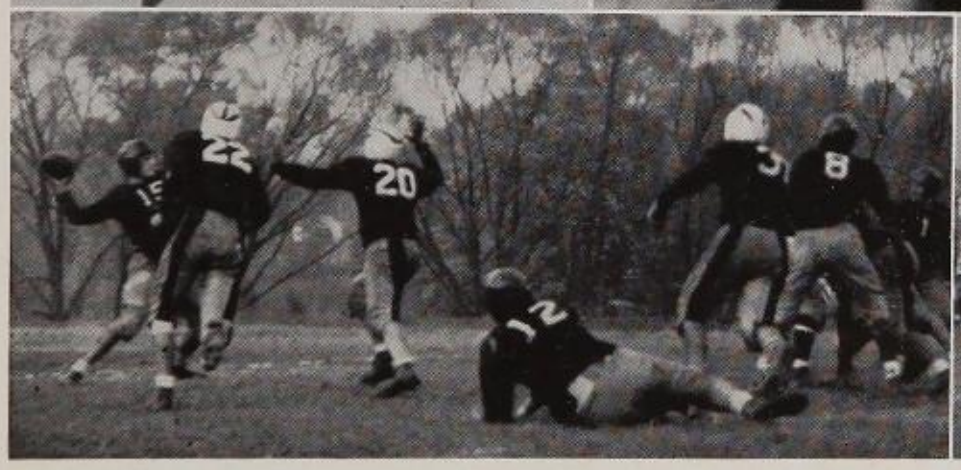
Anyone who saw the large turnouts at Howard Field on the afternoon of a football game could hardly fail to realize that this was the most popular sport among Davis students. Whatever we lacked in other fields, we made up for it in spirit on the gridiron. It is by this spirit that we distinguished ourselves from other schools. Those who saw the New Rochelle game will remember that we had as many rooters at New Rochelle's field as did the home team, and we certainly made as much noise as they.

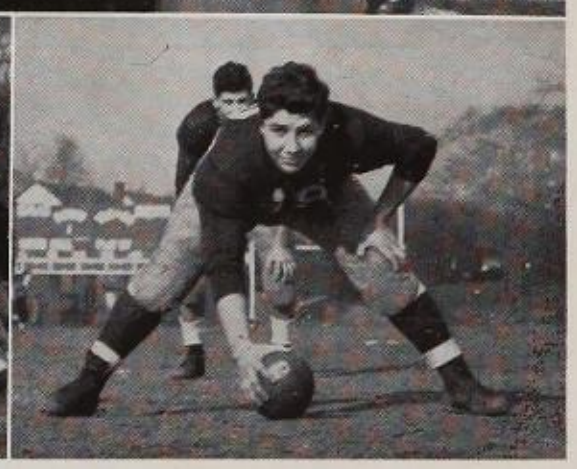
This popularity was shown in the turnout for the team at the beginning of the season, when Coach Doyle was mobbed by more than a hundred hopeful football stars. Among this group were players who formed the backbone of the team, such as Mauro Valentine and Sandy Sokoloff. It was men like these who could lead a team on to victory.

Last year our team needed just a little more work to be top team in the county. However, we finished with a good season average. Next year looks very promising.









SUPERMEN OF THE GRIDIRON

Do these pictures bring back memories? Remember the Pelham game, when Herb Ramsey made that 60 yard run, with only about five minutes left to play? And then there was the traditional Edison game, in which our boys put up such a good fight. We don't like to think of the time when Chuck Graney broke his hip, and we probably would have made higher scores if he hadn't been injured. In the other pictures we see Bob Clune, Frank Mellis, and some of the other men who contributed so much to our team.

VOLLEY BALL

ON GUARD!

A series of grunts and groans, followed by shrill screams, and peppered with a few thuds was the familiar sign to all Davisites that the volley ball season had begun. Three senior, three junior, and two sophomore teams competed. Games were played on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays under the eagle eyes of Miss Wight and Miss Taylor, acting as timekeepers. Jean Wilson, Harriet Weisberg, Beatrice Gray, Joan Frisch, Laurel Ostlund, Elaine Impara, Brunie Garland, and Virginia Hewitt were captains. The senior team led by Harriet Weisberg won, and its members received large "D's".

On January 10, two teams from Roosevelt played two Davis teams, and after two gruelling contests, each school emerged with one victory. Davis won with a close margin of 16-11, and Roosevelt with a 50-8 conquest.

Strangely feminine sounds also emanated from the Fencing Club, and clatter of cavorting foils were strongly flavored with shrieks and chatter from the club's large feminine membership. On closer observation, the casual onlooker would have discovered a group of apparently sane people involved in hopeless gymnastics. Known only to the layman as "positions", these caused many a would-be fencer to retire in order to bathe his aching muscles.

The formerly all-male club was surprised by the number of girls who joined and promptly mastered the complexities of mask and foil. Mr. Carlson, the club sponsor, and its president, Iver Johnson bravely attempted to develop graceful talents in their many budding fencers. In that line, the girls were reputed to have outdone the boys.

FENCING CLUB

PROVING GROUND

A game well calculated to keep one's muscles in a constant state of rigor mortis is that fine old sport, tennis. Visions of stalwart young Amazons appear when it is mentioned. Davis had its own share of enthusiastic tennis players, who vigorously batted that little white ball back and forth over a net.

Batting larger balls around the courts were the exuberant hockey teams. The Girls' Field Hockey Tournaments began in October, with seventy-five eager females turning out. Dorothy Durfey headed the seniors, Joan Beacom the juniors, and Alice Reichgott the sophomores. They displayed their prowess under the direction of Miss Wight and Miss Taylor.

The juniors won by a narrow margin of 2-0, which gave the seniors second place. Members of the winning team received large "D's" and the losers small ones. The third place sophomore team was awarded felt "48" numerals.

The fine art of bag punching has come into its own at Davis. We don't mean paper bags, either. The boys developed deadly right crosses and upper cuts calculated to make anyone think twice before entering into combat with them.

DRIPS AND DRIBBLES

Slop! Splash! Glub! No, it's not a hapless Davisite sinking to Davey Jones' locker ("drowning" to all ye landlubbers), but our swimming team doing their stuff. Davis was blessed with a goodly number of mermen this year, notable among them Eddie Emes and Bob Maxwell. In fact, we were nosed out of the county championship by Mamaroneck, leading with 3½ points. With plenty of boys returning next fall, Coach Oswald looks toward a bright future. Here's to next year's county champs!

When these hallowed halls trembled, and sounds resembling a stampeding herd of wild horses were heard, students would listen, shrug their shoulders, and murmur, "Must be a basketball game." Downstairs it was a hard, fast struggle highlighted by the abilities of Dick Senno and Tony Daniello. Upstairs the game was an equal struggle, with captains Ethel Clausen, Ann McGovern, and Brunie Garland leading the seniors, juniors and sophomores.

OH, MY ACHIN' BACK

S. Garland, E. Clausen, Miss Wight, A. Gorman, A. Reichgott, K. Davenport

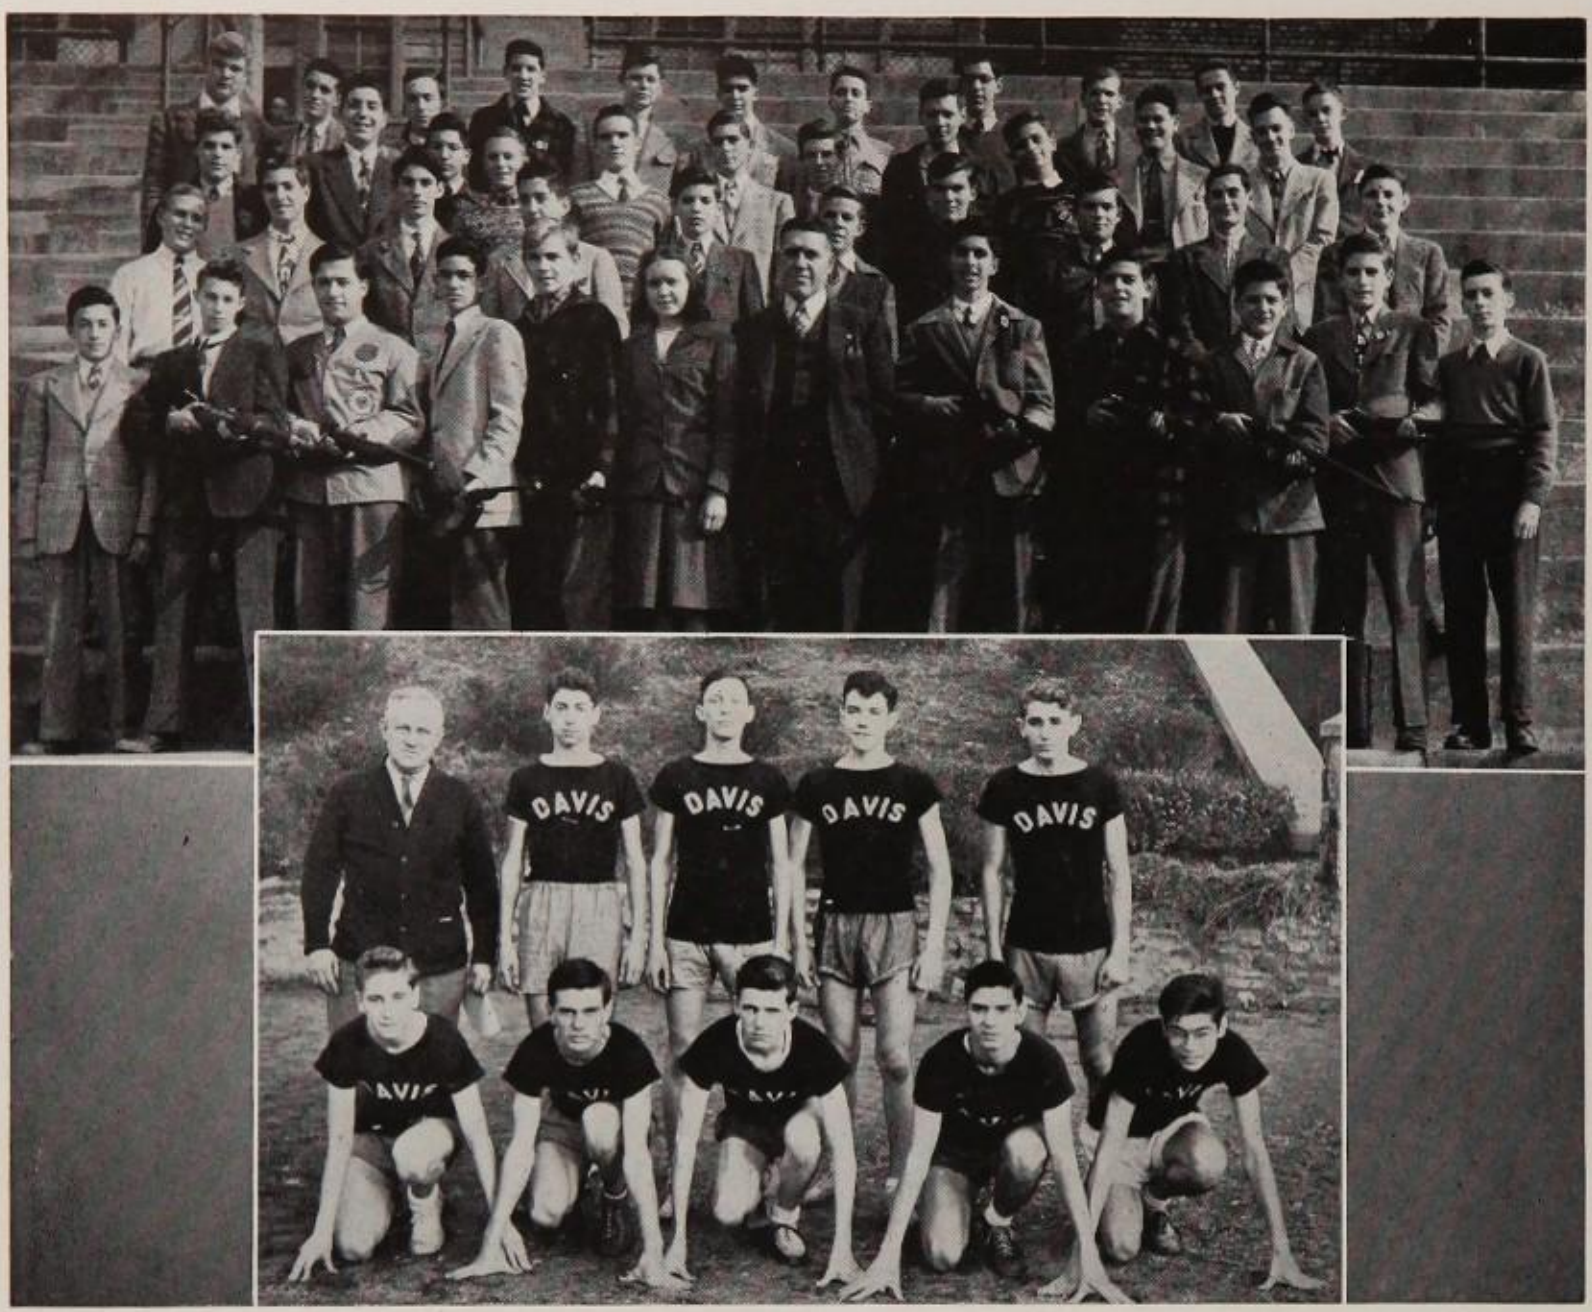
During the year, down in the boys' gym were heard the deep rumblings of "Hep, two, three, four! Snap it up! Get along there!" — and in the girls' gym, "Hep, two, three, four! Come on girls!" Downstairs we heard "Arms sideward, lift! Overhead, raise!" — and upstairs — "Arms forward, raise! Deep knee bend!" So you see, we're all one great big happy family, being built up toward the eventual superhuman specimens that our hopeful gym teachers would like us to be.

Downstairs the boys were cavorting about in their scanty white suits, and upstairs the girls were performing in those pretty blue (potato) sacks so flattering (?) to their "figgers". In this building-up process, only the fittest survived, and often a lot of fatigued bodies would lie in heaps along the walls.

All these trials were eventually successful, and one day, after numerous calculations and measurements, we discovered a growth of roughly .00000001 inch in our biceps. Maybe we're getting somewhere after all!

ATHLETIC COMMITTEE

The Girls' Athletic Committee had charge of most of the important athletic affairs. Ethel Clausen, Katherine Davenport, Susan Garland, Audrey Gorman, and Alice Reichgott were the members of this all-important committee, with Miss Wight acting as faculty adviser. Their work consisted of passing on all athletic business, honors, policies, and procedures. They also served as hostesses for a Roosevelt-Davis volley ball game.



ON YOUR MARK!

The team with the best record this year was the Davis Rifle Team, which emerged the victor in the Westchester Scholastic Rifle League for the second time, dropping only one match by four points to Roosevelt High during the entire season. Coach Jack Caville's team members varied, since they were picked from the top ten marksmen in the weekly practice of the Davis Rifle Club. The sharpshooters' prone scores were usually from 95 to 100 out of a possible 100. They certainly did a bang-up job!

Off at the sound of the gun were the members of the Cross-Country Team. Coached by Earl Oswald, these "Pheidippides in the making" regularly covered the rough 2½ mile course at Tibbetts Brook in about 12½ minutes.

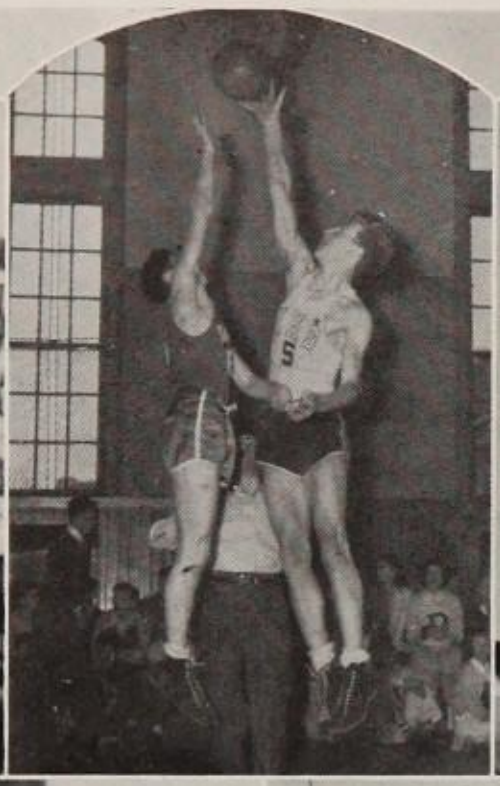
REVENGE IS SWEET

Crowds shrieked, bottles barely missed the umpire, expectancy shone on the faces of every spectator. Who would the victor be? It was the ninth inning, two out, bases loaded — one strike, two strikes, three — "you're out!" Cheers, jeers, and once again Davis students had proven their physical prowess over their classroom Simon Legrees.

More exciting than any Dodger exhibition, the Hill-top sports fans welcome in Spring each year with their annual Student-Faculty game. The diamond displayed many good points on last May 11, with Mr. Russell, Mr. Avery, and Mr. Cullen hoping "to keep face" for the teachers after their combat against the more agile younger generation. The Babe Ruth's of Davis included Larry Parker and Herb Ramsey. The highlight of the game came when Larry, with one foot raised in preparation to descend on Mr. Cullen's unsuspecting head, had to decide whether his school or sports career was more important. In that second, with umpire Pop Phillips an unbiased spectator, Larry chose the former.

Although our worthy pedagogues battled commendably, as usual, they had to admit the students' superiority.



Our twirlers and drum majorettes added a great deal of needed color to our football games. These girls were our school's flag-bearers, and gave us a brilliant show of school spirit. In basketball this color was lacking, but in the fast-moving football games the spectators were more than satisfied. It was our basketball team which represented Davis during the winter months, and while we were far from the top this year, every man was in there doing his best. Davis has always excelled in fair play and good sportsmanship. Let us continue to strengthen these good qualities so that other citizens of our city may desire to know us.

CONFUSION'S MASTERPIECE

Long before motorboats and doughnuts were invented, the world was bothered by the apple. As the story goes, Adam and Eve partook of the forbidden fruit and suffered eternal damnation—fatal apple! Henceforth, all who tasted of the never-to-be-eaten green apple doubled up and became twins! This was their punishment, and as a result, the rest of the world suffered.

People hesitated to speak to all carbon copies for fear they were addressing the wrong party. Whenever the dittos went shopping and waited on lines, one was refused by an icy, haunting voice—"only one to a customer." The good citizens of the town were forced into confessing that they had just a "wee snort" whenever the double editions crawled by. The druggist prescribed aspirins and seltzers, but people still saw double, and the druggist, failing to mollify the situation, was exiled. Alas, the factory that supplied the aspirins received no orders and had to close down. The workers were jobless and had no buying power. Other workers, because of this, were forced into oblivion. The town was becoming cadaverous. Multiply this drastic situation by thousands and what have you — a hopeless merry-go-round of confusion, strife, and depression.

Then, out of the troubled sky, came a flash of hope in the form of Noah Webster. Taking his powerful pen into hand, he inserted the word "twin" into his dictionary. He, wise and understanding, knew that some children would nibble on the sour apple, and double up. Therefore, wishing to redeem them he interpolated his wide-read text and wrote:

"twin—one of two persons or things related by ties of birth."
He never mentioned their sin, and, as a result, the ever-grateful, ever-increasing army erected a monument for the man who provided a refuge for them, who saved them from the flood of bewilderment. Thus it was that Noah's Ark came into existence.

And now, centuries later, the world thrives happily, and has grown to love and accept twins—so much, in fact, that a certain Johnny Appleseed planted apple seeds in the hope of cultivating this one-time destructive apple. So the story goes. . . (Shades of Gemini, what lies!)

SERVICEMEN'S COMMITTEE

NOTICING

Did you notice that the G. O. featured a seasonal ticket which enabled football fiends to go to the game at reduced rates? This eliminated the mad dash to the ticket lines Friday after school. They also sponsored "College Days". G.O. students are just like any other Davis hep-cats, elected to lead the school government.

Did you notice the re-appearance of those attractive "Alpha Tau Deltians" at the football games who had not appeared there since the war? Entering the gate, one was practically knocked over by five girls trying to sell a booster book. Alpha Tau Delta was the right hand man to the G. O., selling hats, pennants and pins.

Did you notice the servicemen's names outside the office? This was the toilsome work of the Servicemen's Committee —to hunt for names of Davis G. I.'s. This committee's plan was to make a permanent plaque honoring Davis boys who fought in World War II.

Did you notice that added charm of our girls this past year? That was the result of our newest club, Peter Pan. They met with Miss Sherman, learning correct posture, voice and manners. Maybe this accounts for the boys having been taken in by that "extra umph" demonstrated by these girls!

Did you notice how the Publicity Committee excelled in keeping the halls decorated with art, and prize photography? It was through their originality that "DAVY" was plastered throughout the building. They publicized dances, games and the Teen-Town drive with a multitude of gay posters, cheering up the halls. Well, did you ever notice?

RECEPTIONISTS

SERVICE CLUB

FUTURE SECRETARIES

As one entered the center of the building, a gorgeous receptionist was waiting to greet one and escort one to his destination. This explains why all our visiting servicemen preferred to use the center entrance. Then as one stepped into the office, another handsome girl was seated outside Mr. Childs' office regulating traffic and acting as general secretary. It was she who signed passes (legally of course) and who ran errands. The receptionists are chosen each year by Mr. Childs for their good looks, capability, and efficiency. They have a great deal of fun, for they have an opportunity to meet people, display their personality (especially to some returning vet), and at the same time are rendering a worthwhile service to the school.

On one's many trips to the office one undoubtedly noticed those student secretaries working efficiently to aid the regular secretarial staff. This was, in action, the Service Club whose members willingly devoted a period a day to ease the many office burdens. They sorted mail, helped with the attendance, did filing, delivered messages and really made the works "tick". What would the office ever do without these unselfish, dependable "secretaries"? They were really on the ball!

DAVISAIDES

Many is the time when a new, trembling sophomore wanted to seek advice from someone other than a teacher who might frighten him out of existence. Who was right there to answer the questions and give aid to a bewildered newcomer? Of course it was the Home Room Advisers. A girl has been chosen from each home room to act as a guide and counselor to green sophomores who have been overwhelmed by the intricate system of Davis. One of the first bits of advice a Home Room Adviser gives is to let the new girl know exactly where the boys' locker room is, and to tell her not to proceed to the lunchroom by a certain stairway, no matter how many boys tell her that it is the only way! These helpful advisers also sponsor a semi-annual dinner to get the girls acquainted with one another. Any sophomore will tell you that the Home Room Advisers are indispensable!

A representative group consisting of one member from each home room got together to form the Home Room Representatives. This is a democratic group, whose function is to receive complaints or suggestions for the bettering of Davis. Then, at regular meetings, they vote on these ideas and submit them to the G. O. for final approval. This democratic system resembles very much our own federal government and is a means for further school representation. Besides this, the reps sell boosters for school dances and tickets to G. O. plays and shows. Although Davis congressmen engage in heated battles, they never use filibustering.

HE PROFITS WHO SERVES

Home Room 116 was unique, being the only home room in Davis composed of only boys. Even the home room teacher, Mr. Doyle, upheld this male monopoly. This elite group, the Boy Marshals, was elected by the students and faculty and represented the leaders of the school, "Davis' finest."

Some of the routine services performed by the Marshals included regulation of traffic in the halls, collection of attendance cards, delivering library passes to the study hall teachers, and supervision of the lunch rooms and locker rooms. They also sold tickets at sports events, helped out in the office, and assisted in volunteer work, in school and out. By setting a good example, they inspired the cooperation of the rest of the school.

That smiling lass who directed you to your seat in assembly so courteously and efficiently was a member of the Girl Marshals. She represented a body of girls who did much more to serve Davis than just standing around looking pretty! The innumerable small tasks that the Girl Marshals performed were essential to the efficient operation of the school. For instance, they helped supervise the lunchrooms and turned the lights off in the halls after classes had passed. Whenever some minor job had to be done, Miss Lewis's Girl Marshals were there to help out.

One of the foremost of the groups that were constantly working to make your school better for you was the School Interests Committee. The hard-working ten members prepared the ground for action by the G. O. and had the power to initiate legislation in the G. O. bearing on the interests of the school. Some of the many school services and improvements that had their origin during meetings of the School Interests Committee included offering a simplification and revising of the G. O. Constitution, working on a G. O. Handbook to be distributed to all sophomores, purchasing a large radio for the school, and preparing a revised list of all the clubs in the school, in addition to passing on all non-athletic honor awards. Miss Young guided this helpful group, whose aim was to improve our school at every opportunity.

Among the less heralded standing committees of the G. O. was the small but essential School Publications Committee. This group of five students, supervised by Miss Brower, was consulted on all proposed appropriations for the "Hi-News", decided on an any changes from the standard format of the publication that was proposed by the editor, and passed on honor awards for the editors of the Hi-News and Maroon and White.

MOST

MUSIC HATH CHARMS

— The best band in the city of Mount Vernon? Why it's the Davis band, under the direction of Mr. Licht. It's the most active civic minded, too. Whenever a war bond drive, or a P. T. A. meeting was held in Mount Vernon, one heard the drums, and other instruments, doing their best. The Band Parade and Band Concert echoed their wonders to the world, and when Dick Sagman and Abraham Greenbaum began to play the flute — well, it was known far and wide.

The Band was behind all the football players and with them came the twirlers, who had a hard time keeping their skirts down on those windy days — their sparkling batons twirling, and, at the head of the procession, the Sonnenblick twins, executing those tricky steps!

Twirlers

Band

Cultural music at Davis came under the capable direction of Mr. Nielsen. Even the most unmusical of us sat up and took notice when the choir went through the strains of the "Lord's Prayer" at our regular assemblies. They really made "beautiful music", especially at the impressive Christmas assembly.

Stop all work! Forget all tests! — That's the cry that rang out when Mr. Nielsen's clarinets and violins began their practice twice a week in the auditorium. During the term Rosemary DeBruyn tried to keep the eyes of the orchestra on their music as she conducted the struggling musicians. The highest point was reached however, when the graduates marched down to receive their diplomas while the band played the "Recessional" at the June Commencement.

When the budget had to be fixed and the musical arrangements planned at the Davis musicals, the G. O. Music Committee stuck its thumb in and always pulled out, not a plum, but a success.

ORCHIDS TO YOU

"The time has come . . .
To talk of many things:
Of shoes—and ships—and sealing-wax,
Of cabbages—and kings—"

With 100 for a Type Regents mark, Lillian Rossi naturally became the Maroon and White typing editor! Hats off to Lillian and her staff of loyal, cheerful workers who spent many long, dreary hours at the typewriters.

A group of students, whose ambition in the future is to work in an office, found very valuable experience in helping in the office at school. Doing everything from delivering messages to helping print notice sheets, they proved themselves invaluable as aids in relieving others.

And most assuredly should we commend the fine spirit of those who helped the less fortunate. The members of the Girls' Club, under the able supervision of Mrs. MacDonald, taught and entertained youngsters while their parents were working. Orchids to you, girls, for helping others!

FASHIONS 'N FADS

1946 . . .

And this year brings:

Bobby sox, slacks and friendship rings,
Pins and slippers, jackets and bows,
Loafers, sweaters and sloppy Joes!

1950 . . .

And the year will see:
The advent of Maturity!

Loafers

No buckles; no laces; no bows to tie;
Its praises I sing to the sky.
The mark of this gift is convenience
galore,
For now I sleep one minute more.

Jackets

A jacket is a funny thing
It often sets me wondering,
For whether it is small or wide
I never know what's inside.

Slacks

The male, he struts and vainly prates
Of how he's worked and toiled,
But a sharp-creased trouser indicates
It's now a woman's world!

Trinkets

In Africa it's quite the style
To bedeck the arms, neck and fingers,
In Davis if you want to beguile
You must be like Ubangis — dead ringers!

WHAT'S BEHIND THOSE PICTURES?

Graduation pictures are funny, somehow. As you turn the pages, they all appear very similar — and yet, behind the eager expectancy of each smile, there are so many different plans, and dreams, and hopes. If only we could furnish a crystal ball with every book, to help you visualize each graduate as he, in all the optimism of youth, sees himself. But perhaps each mother's heart is that crystal ball, each dad's plan a door to the future.

And so, may we urge you, as you leaf through the pages of this "Maroon and White" to pause just a bit and give careful consideration to the eager faces upturned to you. Theirs will be the task of furthering the cause of country and God, theirs will be the burden of preserving civilization, and from their ranks must come the future champions of the persecuted. They will be the doctors, the nurses, the statesmen, and the businessmen, — the very essence of the America of the future.

Already some have shown their capabilities as leaders. Anton Popper, June Foster, George King and Anna Vasiliou, for instance, head the January graduating class as president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer respectively. Four other students were chosen to represent over three hundred or more June graduates as president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer; Richard Sagman, Jean Wilson, Mitchell Rabbino, and Lorraine Alper. Others, too, have led their classes, their clubs, their friends during their school years. Now they are all leaving to try their hand at leading the world out of the chaotic condition it is now in.

They seem older and more serious, now, don't they? You, who have yet to reach the ultimate goal they have already attained, must look up to them, admire them, and you, who have faced life, must pity their trust, and be thankful for their strength and youth; for you have trained them and have led them, and now the task, with all its bitter disappointment and heartwarming success, is theirs. There is much pain — and joy — stored for them in life, and many times will they wish to be children again—.

We are truly grateful for your guidance and trust. Now, as you turn the pages, feel proud of your children, who are now grown. We will sincerely endeavor to merit the confidence of America and you.

LOOKING FORWARD

Despite the close of a school year, the realization remains with all its many students, that Davis and its compelling influence will continue to affect them the rest of their lives. These students, while attending school, are anxious to uphold the prestige and recognition that Davis receives. Once graduated, they continue to strive for higher and higher heights, so as to make all Mount Vernon always proud of their former school and of them, the finished products of that school. The friendships, associations, and activities found in Davis High School were assets well worth having, and thus it is with stout hearts that they look forward to the tomorrow, optimistic, and keen in their desire to make the next day even better than the preceding one. With such ambitions they cannot fail — Mount Vernon's future is safe in their capable hands!
